CHUGGING DEATHTRAP

Unit 2 Jack Heath

At last my train has arrived. I climb aboard. Suddenly the windows shatter—outwards! The seats catch fire! The metal sides of the train start twisting and melting. The train is exploding!

I wake up from unconsciousness. A pipe above me has burst, and water is raining on me. I get up. There is someone in front of me. I look closer. This could not be someone! It must be something! It has greyish green skin and hollow, empty eyesockets. I scream. I scream again. And I scream again. Then I give up screaming and kick the thing in the stomach.

It falls over face forward. I look around, and see that all the other passengers are dead. I advance forward slowly. I look to the left. Empty seats. I look forwards. Empty corridor. I look to the right. Empty eyesockets. "Everything is empty around here." I mutter. I continue walking. Wait... Something is funny about that. I look back. Empty eyesockets.

"Hmmm... AH HA!" I punch the zombie in the nose. Well, that is that problem solved. This place is scary!

I sit in a corner and curl up into a little ball. Suddenly the floor collapses from underneath me and I fall out of the train. I bang my fist on some machinery in irritation, which happens to be red hot. I jump away, bang my head on the ceiling, which bursts and showers me with cold

WHEN WRITING...

- Start in the middle (in media res)
- Show, don't tell
- Use sensations and (original) similes

WHEN EDITING...

- Make it clear
- Delete ~~all of the~~ useless words
- Be specific
